POP-AGANDA!

It's one thing to wear your heart on your sleeve, and entirely another to wear your art on your jeans. But this May, Pepe Jeans London will introduce The Andy Warhol Collection, a line of apparel consisting of designs tagged Pop or Factory, respectively, inspired by Warhol's works and lifestyle. The collection won't be the fashion industry's only tribute to Warhol this spring: In May, Robert Lee Morris will release 400 sterling-silver necklaces featuring an engraved quote from the late artist. And following the success of last fall's Warhol Silver Factory, fragrance-maker Bond No. 9 has produced the new Warhol Union Square. The fragrance hits Saks Fifth Avenue stores in March and comes in 10 different bottles bearing designs from Warhol's "Flowers" series. If all this isn't homage enough, collectors can spring for the entire Union Square bottle set for $1,500. It's certainly the least expensive way to own an entire Warhol series—even if it can't buy you your 15 minutes of fame. —Melissa Cantor

CLOTHES CAUSE

With the first few peeks of spring, you may be inclined to fill your walk-in with brightly hued patio dresses. Lucky for you, Neiman Marcus Willow Bend is giving you the opportunity to feel fantastic about speeding toward your credit limit when Escada global merchandising designer Daniel Wingate rolls into town on March 6 for an Escada runway show benefiting Collin County's Star Children's Charity, a new organization that donates funds to a variety of children's charities. For more information, call 972.629.1700, ext. 1704. And while your in the spirit, check out L. Bartlett's new West Village digs during an opening celebration March 13-16, with proceeds benefiting the Genesis Women's Shelter. Giving sure looks good! L. AND THE RUNWAY GOES TO...

"He loves women. He loves Dallas, and we love him," enthused Shelle Sills, vice president/general manager of Neiman Marcus Downtown, as she announced that famed fashion designer Oscar de la Renta will be bringing his ruffled runway looks to the Crystal Charity Ten Best Dressed Luncheon and Fashion Show on Thursday, September 11, 2008. Mr. de la Renta is so adored in Big D that Neiman Marcus is bringing the designer back for a third stint as the featured designer for the luncheon—a calendar must for the well-shod, socially swell Dallas woman. Expect the usual unadulterated femininity from the designer, spiked with bold, graphic color contrast and heavy detailing. The genius is in the details, after all.
